Noland Williams introduced Rita H. Oglesbee, Executive Director of the TLC home on Hawkins Avenue in Sanford, for a program describing the history, mission and future of the TLC home. In 1982 Sandra Kelly, Susan Uzzell and Jan Lawrence along with other concerned citizens and health care professionals, incorporated as a non-profit organization the TLC home with the purpose of developing an Intermediate Care facility for multi-handicapped children in a homelike setting. TLC home believes the community treatment model offers the best opportunity for the total growth of the person because of the evolving relationship between the person's needs and the community's resources. Before academic development, vocational training, self-care training, or other developmental services, the value of a trusting, emotionally supportive, and intensively human relationship is held to be of premier importance. The TLC home has a 'Special Date for Eight' fundraiser each year.
