Paul Dauphin introduced Leslie Cox for a program describing Leslie's recent visit to Australia as a member of the Rotary District 7690 Group Study Exchange. This was Leslie's second trip to Australia as a GSE member, and he opened his presentation with a "G'Day Ya'll" the Australian equivalent of 'hello, folks'. The 7690 GSE group visited Rotary District 9640 in South Wales/Queensland, Australia, an area with 56 Rotary Clubs and 1,456 Rotarians. Leslie said their visit ranged from the mountains to the sea in one of the most beautiful countries in the world. Other members of the group were Matthew Johnson, an urban planner, Megan McClure, a loan specialist, Chris Arrington, an environmental consultant and banjo picker, Farren Paton, packaging engineer and Joseph Thompson III (aka THOMO), a poet. The visit itinerary included Palm Beach, Stanthorpe, Tenterfield, Burleigh, Surfers Paradise, Mullumbimby, Lismore and Yamba.
